

LUNCH SEMINARS FALL 2019

The CIES Lunch Seminar Series is a series of interdisciplinary research seminars on environmental, natural resources and development issues.

Thursday 3 October 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P-847

Is the 2015 Paris Agreement likely to achieve its goals? A skeptical assessment

Urs Luterbacher, Professor Emeritus, IR/PS, Centre for International Environmental Studies, the Graduate Institute

Thursday 21 November 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P1-847

European Union Climate Action

Lavina Daria, Visiting Fellow, International Law Department and Jurist, European Parliament

Tuesday 15 October 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P1-847

Political settlements and the challenge of mining governance reform: reading across Indonesia, El Salvador and Honduras

Anthony Bebbington, Professor of Environment and Society at Clark University

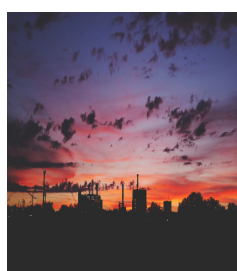

Thursday 28 November 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P1-847

School Feeding Programmes and the Allocation of Children's Time in Rural Malawi

Roxana Manea, PhD Candidate in Development Economics, the Graduate Institute

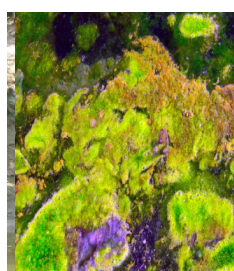

Thursday 7 November 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P1-847

Multinational enterprises and the global ownership network: an intertemporal perspective

Philipp Grosskurth, PhD in International Economics, CIES Visiting fellow

Thursday 5 December 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P1-847

The Ocean Forests Foundation: can seaweed help avoid a climate crisis?

Tim Flannery, Segré Foundation Distinguished Visiting Professor, the Graduate Institute

Thursday 14 November 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P1-647

Sovereign Debt Stability and the Effectiveness of Transnational Governance Regimes

Jamie Fraser, PhD Candidate in International Economics, the Graduate Institute

Thursday 12 December 2019

12:15 - 13:30, room P1-847

Title to follow

Speaker to be confirmed