Human Rights and Humanitarian Law and Action

PHD THESIS

The Role of Litigation on Norm Transformation: Human Rights and Environmental Protection

Given the rising significance of courts in global politics, and the mounting number of environmental cases before human rights courts, Defne Gonenc analyses how litigation contributes to norm transformation in human rights approaches to environmental protection.

PHD THESIS

Reorienting the Nation: Perspectives from Soviet Central Asia in the 1920s

Central Asians used the nation as a label in their negotiations with representatives of Soviet power in the 1920s. So argues Vsevolod Kritskiy, who links this Central Asian history with the global spread of the nation-state form in the colonial world in the interwar period. Interview ›
EDITED BOOK CHAPTER

Senegal: A New West African Leader in a Globalized World?

Délidji Eric Degila, Research Associate at the CCDP, and Charles Amogan (in Diplomatic Strategies of Nations in the Global South: The Search for Leadership, Palgrave, 2017) explain why and how, since independence in 1960, Senegal has been playing a major role in the regional scene and has emerged as one of the main builders of “state PanAfricanism”.

COLLOQUIUM

Is the Transition Over?

“Transition” has become a convenient trope or “buzzword” expressing both uncertainty and hope. On 6–7 December, a joint colloquium, coorganised with the Institute for Human Sciences (IWM) and placed under the scientific responsibility of Andre Liebich, explored the multiple shades of this concept.

EDITED BOOK CHAPTER

Imperial and Transnational Developmentalisms: Middle Eastern Interplays, 1880s–1960s

In his contribution to The Development Century: A Global History (CUP), Cyrus Schayegh goes beyond the dominant view that the world of development is composed of colonies/postcolonial countries and imperial/postimperial metropoles to analyse the interplays of developmentalisms in the region in all their complexity and subtlety.

Global Health

EDITED BOOK

Research Handbook on Global Health Law

The effect of globalisation on health has attracted the attention of scholars and policymakers across multiple disciplines. But it is the first time that a research handbook (Edward Elgar) presents a comprehensive coverage of contemporary issues in global health law and governance. Interview with Gian Luca Burci › coeditor of the handbook with Brigit Toebes.
SPECIAL SUPPLEMENT

BMJ Special Supplement: Global Health Disruptors

This supplement is part of a series commissioned by The BMJ based on ideas discussed with members of the Global Health Centre. It look back at global health disruptors of the past two decades and looks forward at what will shape global health in the future.

PHD THESIS

Collective Non-State Entities in International Law

According to the mainstream international law doctrine, collective non-state entities are essentially excluded from the regulatory reach of binding international law. Klara Polackova Van der Ploeg explores adaptations of international law to a globalised environment with respect to those entities, and finds a discrepancy between doctrine and practice.
